Conference Theme: Ethics and Capitalism

Dublin City University (DCU) is delighted to host the 26th International Vincentian Business Ethics Conference (IVBEC) from October 24th to October 26th, 2019 in Dublin, Ireland. The conference is organised by the School of Theology, Philosophy, and Music together with the Institute of Ethics and the Business School at DCU. As usual, the IVBEC is interested in leading academics, business professionals and young scholars' examination and reflection on current ethical issues affecting businesses, economic, political and social life.

The theme of the 26th IVBEC 2019 conference is Ethics and Capitalism.

Capitalism, as an economic system, continues to spark many ethical, political, economic, social and cultural debates. It is a system that is not solely confined to economics but has ramifications for many aspects of democratic and family life around the world. However, the connection between economic self-interest and the benefit of all remains a perennial issue. As a subject, capitalism invites an interdisciplinary approach such as political theory, social theory, theology, philosophy as well as ethics.

At this conference, there will be keynote addresses and parallel oral presentation sessions to generate debate and discussion amongst conference participants on business ethics in general and on the theme of capitalism in particular. We hope that this conference will provide an opportunity to bring together scholars and practitioners from around the world to take time to reflect on capitalism as an economic system from a business ethics perspective. The language for the conference will be English.

Call for Papers

We encourage proposals from academics, business professionals and young scholars. Anyone wishing to present a paper at one of the parallel sessions, should submit an abstract of 500 words max in a WORD document format via email to ivbec2019@dcu.ie by April 2nd, 2019. We would like to invite papers that focus on, but are not confined to, some of the following themes in relation to capitalism:

- Past, Present & Future Trends
- Business
- Governance & Regulation
- Philosophical/Theological Perspectives & Responses
- American & European & World Perspectives
- Globalisation
- Corporate Social Responsibility
- Social Media & Internet of Things
- Politics & Social Theory
- Crisis
- Ethical Theories

Abstracts may also be on any aspect of business ethics

Submission Process for Abstracts

1. Please include full name, university/organisation affiliation, postal address, title of paper, and email address and phone number (and country code) of each author. Please follow the abstract template provided below when submitting the abstract.
2. Please indicate under which of the above themes in relation to capitalism that your paper would fall (if it is none of the above themes, please suggest a theme).
3. Abstracts should be sent by email to ivbec2019@dcu.ie.
4. Abstracts should be in English. All submissions must indicate whether they are 'Abstract only' (i.e. for the purpose of a parallel oral presentation session) or 'Full' papers (i.e. for the purpose of a parallel oral presentation session and with the intention to submit a full paper to be considered for the 'Patrick Primeaux Best Paper Award' - please see below for more information on this.) Final abstract proposals for inclusion in the conference will be selected through a blind referee process. The Conference Committee will select abstracts for the oral presentation parallel sessions.
5. When submitting, please label the files as follows: 'Last Name, First Name – Title Page'; and, 'Last Name, First Name – AbstractOnly' or 'Last Name, First Name – Full Paper.' Panel proposals should include the names and affiliations of all panelists. All materials or references that allow the blind reviewer to identify the author(s) should be completely removed from the abstract, and appear only on the title page.
